

Football

COYOTE-LONG BEACH POSTSEASON GAME HOPE OF FOOTBALL FANS IF LOCAL MEETING CAN BE ARRANGED

Talk of a post-season football game in Phoenix will not down despite official statements that the football season will end with the Thanksgiving game between the Phoenix Indians and the Coyotes.

There is little chance of sending the Coyotes to the coast for a post-season game, but local grid followers are pulling strings to bring the coast team here for the Thanksgiving day game. Local fans are anxious to see Long Beach make good on their promise to come here for a game after the Coyotes made the coast trip.

Long Beach buried the Coyotes under a tidal wave that counted up to 102 points before the flood ceased, but the Coyotes of 1921 are far superior to the Coyotes of 1920 and the strength of Robinson's team this year cannot be disputed.

With the proposed San Diego game called off and nothing booked for the Coyotes after the Thanksgiving day game, local fans are anxious to give the Coyotes a chance to redeem that 102 to 0 defeat. The game would mean much to the valley from an advertising standpoint and with the present team Coach Robinson could hold the seaside eleven.

Phoenix high has a wonderful chance to show the coast schools how fast football has moved in Phoenix since 1920. If Phoenix hopes to break into the coast conference the sting of the Long Beach defeat must be first wiped away and it would be far easier to clear the slate at home than on foreign soil.

Robinson has the greatest team in the history of the school and a victory over Long Beach at this time would force the coast schools to recognize Phoenix in the conference.

The Long Beach team is a wonderful working machine, but is far from the strong aggregation that dropped the Coyotes in the sea and threw the life savers away. By defeating El Paso Friday the Coyotes demonstrated that Phoenix has a wonder team.

The Coyotes outplayed the Pasos City team at every angle of the game and offset the weight advantage held by El Paso by superior team work and a defense that held like a stone wall. If the Coyotes can offset a 10-pound weight advantage and still win they can go far toward wiping out the 1920 defeat.

Friday's game proved that football will draw a local game with Long Beach would be a bigger attraction and should be the capacity of any valley park. The game could be played about Dec. 10, after the conference season closes, or could be held over until New Year's day.

It will take considerable work to arrange the game and will necessitate more hard work after the game is scheduled, but it will be worth the effort both to the fans and the school.

Permission to play the game must first be obtained from the school authorities and then a campaign must be inaugurated to book Long Beach or some equally strong coast team.

and was replete with medical testimony and X-ray photo exhibits. Nine physicians testified in the case on behalf of both parties to the suit.

Miss Moore appeared in court on crutches and alleged she had been on crutches ever since the accident occurred. On Saturday morning the street car on which the accident occurred was brought to the Ford hotel corner and was inspected by the jury.

This is the second time during the past month in which the street railway company has been awarded the verdict in damage suits brought against it. On Saturday morning the company was represented by Attorneys Penmore and Longan of the firm, Chalmers, Stahl, Penmore and Longan, while Miss Moore was represented by Judge Carl Davis of the firm, Davis and Goodman.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

new

La Azora

The best value we know today—you'll want to tell your friends about the new La Azora.

ROTHENBERG & SCHLOSS
CIGAR CO., DISTRIBUTORS
Denver, Colo.

10¢ and 2 for 25¢

SPORTS

Boxing

MADDEN MADE MILLIONS IN HORSE RACES

JOHN E. MADDEN, FAMOUS TURFMAN, AND TWO OF HIS HORSES: RIGHT, SIR MARTIN; LEFT, HAMBURG, FAMOUS SIRE.

not one cent of this has ever been made through betting on race horses. Madden is a boy turned horse fancier. He came to Lexington in 1883 and from that time he has been a leader of the trotting and thoroughbred ovals.

His first "big" buy was in 1889 when he paid $10,000 for Suisun, trotting mare, and in 1890 he paid $25,000 for Robert McGregor, famous trotting sire.

Madden has a lot of sentiment for his horses. He heard that Nancy Hanks, trotting mare, was for sale. He immediately bought her and gave her a home on the blue grass of his farm and the day she arrived Madden issued invitations to numerous friends for a reception in honor of Nancy Hanks.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments of Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added lustre to the annals of the turf. Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals. But selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than to keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

canvass showed that 37 votes had been cast for the district and 27 were against it. The results as tallied by the clerk of the election at the polls gave the result as 27 for and 27 against the district. The board did not add to the results of the election, two votes against the district as ordered by Judge Jencks in his decision handed down Saturday in the case of Leslie H. Rhunt against the state.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged in a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

SIXTEEN ROUNDS OF PRELIMINARY BOXING TONIGHT AT NEW STADIUM

Eight local battlers will present arms at the Capital City arena this evening in a four bout preliminary boxing card with each bout scheduled for four rounds.

Each bout is billed as a main event, but the Young Arnold-Wildcat fight argument will fill in where main events are usually billed on the program. The Arnold-Johns scrap can be easily classed as the main event. Arnold is giving away considerable weight, but his reputation as a fighter will stand 10 pounds against the Wildcat. Arnold has been traveling so fast he cannot find boxes close to his weight in the valley and he is moving up to the featherweight limits.

The semi-final will bring together Wild Bill Tanner and Dummy Madden. Tanner has been fighting around the state for some time, but he has never been given a Phoenix tryout. Madden has been working at the Capital City arena for several months acting as trial horse for aspiring young fighters. He is a light heavy in weight, but like the big limit. Little is known of Tanner's ability outside of exhibition work at the local training quarters.

Speedy Flynn will do battle with Rufus II. The two in a four rounder. Flynn made a lightning finish against Wildcat Johns last Friday night and won a draw verdict. Rufus is the hard luck miller who loses to Rorrio with the consistency of an income tax collector.

Bill Campbell, promising lightweight with a punch, will fight four rounds with Cactus Brown a new fistic production. If Brown can give Campbell any kind of argument this will be a good fight as Bill can mix with both hands.

Leo Kelly will referee all events. The first bout will start at 8:15 p. m.

Arizona is a member and every effort is now being made to bring about the admission of the Junior College to the state university.

Admission is granted to graduates of any accredited high school. Matriculation requirements correspond with those of the university and those who qualify are eligible to earn university credits while those who do not meet this standard may take special courses.

The university has been requested to make out all final examination questions in each subject offered. It is the aim of the Junior College to make the work as high grade as that turned out in the university.

San Francisco has more telephones per capita than any other large city.

Some of the largest locomotives ever manufactured in the United States are used on the island of Java.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

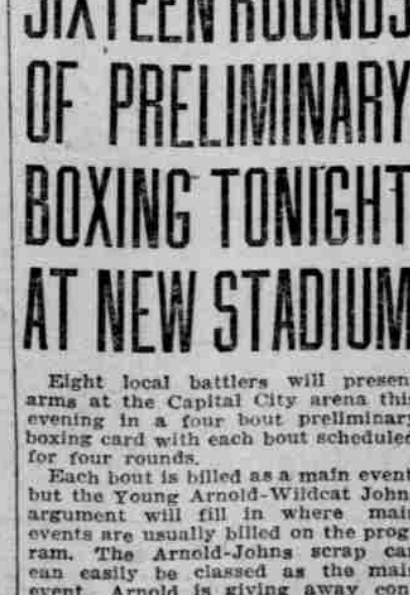

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

U. OF A. WILL GIVE FULL RECOGNITION TO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Full recognition of the work being done by students in the Junior College here and the co-operation of the state university is promised by Dr. R. B. von KleinSmid, president of the University of Arizona, and members of the faculty, according to the Arizona Wildcat, the university's publication.

In its last issue the Arizona Wildcat says:

"The Junior College held in connection with the Phoenix Union high school recently petitioned the administration of the university to grant credit for work done by its students. Dr. von KleinSmid and the faculty have endorsed the plan and promised the fullest co-operation of the university with the Junior College plans as formulated in the different cities in the state."

The local Junior College has not attained a size to merit its being accredited by the North Central Association to which the University of Arizona is a member and every effort is now being made to bring about the admission of the Junior College to the state university.

Admission is granted to graduates of any accredited high school. Matriculation requirements correspond with those of the university and those who qualify are eligible to earn university credits while those who do not meet this standard may take special courses.

The university has been requested to make out all final examination questions in each subject offered. It is the aim of the Junior College to make the work as high grade as that turned out in the university.

San Francisco has more telephones per capita than any other large city.

Some of the largest locomotives ever manufactured in the United States are used on the island of Java.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

Arizona's National Guard ranks third in the United States in percentage of figures received from the military department. With an authorized strength of 725, there are 619 guardsmen in the state giving Arizona a percentage of 84 and ranking only below Porto Rico and Connecticut. Nevada of all the states in the union is the only one without an authorized national guard, her quota of 179 not being filled.

Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls said yesterday that in the cities where armories were established it was not difficult to keep up the full strength of 84 in the companies and 175 in the battalions but that where there were no armories it was a more serious problem. He said that if Arizona had adequate headquarters for her troops she would have had the honor of first rank rather than third.

At the present time there are two battalions of field artillery, Battery D, located in Flagstaff, and Battery E, Mesa. The equipment for the Mesa battery was shipped last week from San Antonio and the guardsmen will have all their supplies by another day or two.

In addition to the field artillery there are three rifle companies, Company A in Phoenix; Company E, Tucson and Company I at Williams. There are two machine gun companies, D at Phoenix and J at Williams and one headquarters company, first battalion, is also located in this city.

Stores of food are piled regularly on islands in the South Seas for use of shipwrecked sailors.

ELKS BASEBALL TEAM TO PRACTICE TONIGHT

All Elks who play baseball are urged to report for practice at Riverside park at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Today's practice will be the next to the last before a team is selected to represent B. P. O. E. lodge No. 335 in the inter-lodge baseball game at Nogales, Ariz., Saturday afternoon.

A large turnout is desired this afternoon, John Frey, secretary of the lodge, said last night. He emphasized the fact that no one has yet been named to play on the team. Final selection being withheld until all players are given an opportunity to show their wares.

The team will leave Phoenix at 5 o'clock Saturday morning